for September 19, 2026

Friends, I want to share more about the key date window coming up in December.

You already know that the 144 convergence arriving on December 10 is based on dividing the age of the Antichrist into the age of the first beast, however I have discovered additional measurements that underscore the importance of this key date.

Using the Daniel key metric for the number of days in one Clock minute as a verse metric (434.58) and adding the Daniel key metric for the number of days in a single verse of Revelation as a Clock time (6.2376), the result is December 10, 2026!

This reflects adding the Signal Code plus 2 hours to account for the time delay that may have begun one year ago this month when Comet Temple 2 reached 3.065 Astronomical Units from the Sun.

Remember that Clock time 3.065 is exactly the center of Revelation 13:3.

A third Clock measurement also marks mid-December by using the day marking our place on the timeline as we move through 6,258 days from the Clock start date until the Clock ends 24 prophetic hours later in early 2028.

I converted every number representing each day on the timeline to a Clock time, and there is only one day in the entire timeline whose converted value equals the same day represented by that number on the Clock!

That day is number 5,841 (plus about ten hours), which reduces to 6:241 on the Clock before adding 2 hours to account for the 2 hour delay, resulting in Clock time 8.241, which falls near 10 AM on December 14, 2026!

Remember that Clock measurements are not confined to one 24 hour day, so we are looking at a date window rather than one 24 hour period.

While we may reach the second stage of Critical Mass before December, and possibly a preemptive gathering around Hanukkah, the crucial window for us will be in the Spring especially near the Man-child's 13th birthday on April 17.

I have checked several Microsoft global date reference numbers in Strong's to see if anything stands out during these key dates in December, and that has led to some amazing results in the Hebrew lexicon.

To begin, I know you have wondered why September 14 was one of our focus dates, so I checked the Strong's entry using Microsoft's reference date value, which is 46,279.

Strong's doesn't have numbers that large, so we use the last four digits and look at entry number 6279 in the Hebrew concordance.

The result is a word that means to intreat, pray, or supplicate, with an emphasis on incense and worship, an exact rendering for the purpose and observance of Rosh Hashanah.

But what stood out in this word entry was that most of its usage comes from the book of Exodus, which is all about the Israelites escaping Egypt, a theme we know pertains to the departure of the saints at the time of harvest.

So I added together all eight verses from Exodus containing this word, and the result was 5,607, which on the Clock reduces to 5 hours plus sixty minutes plus an additional 42 seconds, which becomes 6.007.

Adding the two hour delay, the result of this measurement is 8.007, which vectors to September 3, 2026, just 9 days before Rosh Hashanah and 11 days before September 14th!

This affirms the divine structure of the bible and how the Clock interfaces mathematically with the text of scripture but without giving us exact dates for exact fulfillment.

I believe the purpose of September 14 was to amplify the importance of the new Jewish year, and to remind us that prognostications on specific dates are not the key to our Watch.

Dates in December get a bit more interesting in terms of their corresponding word meanings, but I won't give specific dates except to say that my focus was around the tenth.

One of these results is the Hebrew word for mouth, but also the word edge, as in the edge of ones teeth or lip, with an expanded citation (in the same entry) meaning to smite with the edge of a sword, a theme we obviously associate with Revelation 13:3.

Another entry using just the last three digits of Microsoft reference number 46,369, is a word that means nought, or to be gone, and includes an expanded citation referring to the translation of Enoch, and includes the words, "behold, he had disappeared!"

Incredibly, this same entry includes the words, "he bringeth princes to nothing," which might be interpreted to mean that he makes his princes disappear, or vanish, which we examined in my last Alert discussing the 144,000 Hebrew princes in light of Revelation 18:14.

Other Clock metrics are pointing to the first half of 2027, with date vectors in the Spring.

Note that the date of Ascension in 2027 is May the 6th, which could mark the third Trumpet and the final in-gathering of harvest group one.

Keep in mind that even if we see a preemptive gathering this Fall, the vast majority won't depart until after the third Trumpet, and probably not until the 6th Trumpet.

I'll close this part of my discussion by saying that attempts to predict a Fall rapture date based on calendar adjustments won't change the fact that barley is to be gathered before Summer wheat, wheat before Fall grapes, and grapes before Winter olives.

Revelation 6:6 isn't about agriculture, it's pointing to the four groups of harvest in the Vineyard parable, where even the penny is made part of this passage!

Now let's turn to the temple and its role in bible prophecy.

We know that Paul in Hebrews says the earthly temple represents the temple in heaven, and that the testimony of the Tabernacle refers to the stone tablets that Moses brought down from Mount Sinai.

These tablets are the testimony referred to in Revelation 15:5, where John says the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony was opened in heaven.

Since the earthly temple mirrors the temple in heaven, what happens in the heavenly temple must be what happens in the Earthly temple.

With that in mind, let's establish a few additional temple facts before going further.

1) In Revelation 11:2, John is told to measure the temple, but to leave out the courtyard because it and the city will be trampled underfoot for 42 months. If the temple itself is not being trampled underfoot, that means it must be under divine protection.

2) In Revelation 15:8, John says no man was able to enter into the temple until all the plagues had been fulfilled. If this restriction on temple access takes place in heaven, it must also take place in the temple on Earth where the plagues are occurring.

3) The temple that Paul sees in 2 Thessalonians 2:4 does not specify the Jewish temple, nor does Paul refer to one standing in the temple, rather he sees one seated in a portrayal of Christ while promoting sin and lawlessness.

Paul was not referring to the Antichrist but rather to the False Prophet seated on his false throne at the Vatican in Rome!

This explains why there is no mention of temple sacrifice or the future Antichrist standing in the temple in the book of Revelation, a glaring oversight if indeed these events are still in front of us.

The prophecy in Daniel 9:26 referring to the complete destruction of the temple occurred in 70 AD when Rome's Titus sacked Jerusalem, bringing an end to altar sacrifice.

Sixty-five years later, Rome put down a revolt led by the false Jewish Messiah Simon Bar-Kokhba, resulting in a massive flight from Judea and also the removal of every foundation stone beneath the temple and city, exactly as Jesus said.

It was Jesus who divided the 70th Week after three and half years of ministry, which is why Daniel said there would be 69 Week unto Messiah, not 69 Weeks unto Messiah's death.

The Antichrist will come, and the temple will be rebuilt, but the Antichrist will be unable to go inside, whereas Elijah will direct the Jews in proper use of the altar.

Those who are looking for prophecies to be fulfilled that have already happened may find it difficult to know where they are on the timeline when those things fail to appear.

As for the Sign of the Son of Man in heaven, a more dramatic manifestation could take place this Fall, especially if we have a preemptive gathering in the month of December.

Stay tuned as you continue to hear what the Spirit is saying to the churches:

Behold, I come quickly!
